This month iTwixie salutes SMART GIRLS everywhere! We believe that girls are smart and should always be proud of who they are.

Smart Girls are not only school smart but they are smart about how they treat their body, who they are friends with, how they relax and feed their brains, a smart girl believes she can achieve anything and above all a smart girl knows how to have awesome FUN!

iTwixie is celebrating Smart Girls by sponsoring the USA Science & Engineering Festival.

SmartGirls

Smart Girls are girls who are funny, popular (a little bit), (and I admit it) shy. This is what I think the word smart means to me.

»by:DrHorrible9

A smart girl is someone who plans for the future. A smart girl is someone who cares about the environment. A smart girl is someone who doesn't care about what she wears. A smart girl is someone who stands up for herself. A smart girl is someone who believes in Justice.

Marine Biology

by:blueowl628

Have you studied Marine biology?

Are you going to soon? I'm in sixth grade, and I have to study basic biology first.

I want to be a Marine biologist when I grow up. ~bo628~

I have an interesting story when it comes to school. When I was 9 and in 4th grade I was a superfast learner. I would grasp what my teacher taught us the first time around. So when she'd come back around to help other kids, I'd always be bored out of my head and doing something else completely. Once I got detention for doing origami under my desk! My grades went down because I was getting in trouble, even though I'm usually an A+ student. My mom took me to a special doctor called a psychologist and I worked with him all summer. But when I went back to school, I was in 6th instead of 5th. Some people hated me for skipping 5th, like my old friends. They thought I thought I was too smart for them. I loved making new friends in 6th though, while still keeping my 5th grade friends. And what made it harder is knowing I would move 2,500 miles away that summer. But we kept the peace and tears were shed many times on my day graduating from 6th grade. I miss my old friends, 5th and 6th, dearly. I moved to the state of Washington and made new friends, and stayed in touch with my old ones. People who saw me, considering I was already small for my age, they'd come up to me and say, "You're in SEVENTH GRADE?" or "I feel so tall now!" or "Hey, look, dude, you're not the shortest kid in school!" or say to their friends, "Look at shortie!" or "How ADORABLE!" and stuff like that. It took some getting used to and the people who thought I was actually their age were surprised when I told them. But soon the remarks stopped, the questions stopped, the weird looks stopped, and I walked down the hallway with a new sense of direction. I was stronger than ever before. Intelligence is plentiful in everyone, whether it be in academics, sports, beauty, etc. Don't feel like you're dumb, worthless, or beat yourself up just because you don't make A+'s in school. Struggling is normal. Don't wish you were smarter like I am, because I've gone through a lot and I understand what it feels like to be worthless and small. But intelligence, intelligence is different. A happy girl is a smart girl.

SELF-CONFIDENCE by:Roseshimmer

Hey. I just wanted to talk to you guys about a HUGE ISSUE INVOLVING TWEEN GIRLS.

SELF-CONFIDENCE. Isn't there one thing you'd like to change about yourself, something you just can't stand?

Don't worry. You're not alone.

Many girls today worry about their weight, appearance, or beauty...

This month's column is devoted to YOU. You... You are yourself, you can love it or dislike it, but no matter what, it's still who you are! Sometimes I wonder why people so constantly judge themselves compared to others... Whether it be a celeb, or a family member, or even a friend, it really isn't healthy.

You really can't judge. Only YOU ARE YOU! It's not like we are all plastic toys... All the little, special, amazing quirks we have make us, US! Like with the plastic toys; there are so many, and people have one PERFECT copy. Key word; copy. We can't judge ourselves to others because there is only one of us!

Now, think about this: You aren't all grown up yet, and even if you don't particularly love yourself, you will!

Trust me, you will grow into your own skin, and those little quirks you thought were sorts of defects, may even turn out to be just another piece of beauty that fills out the whole you. The whole you? The whole you is one thing, if anything. AMAZING.

And haven't you heard the saying, "everyone's different"? Well we are the same in one way.

WE ARE ALL GORGEOUS, IN OUR OWN WAY

Reflections on Fog in the Smokies

»by: Roseshimmer

Why does this make me sad?
It's really only beautiful.
The mountains framed by hazy clouds,
Lamplight gleaming silkily over grass,
Heat rushes to my face,
Flames dance below me,
Ash a flurry in an abundance of energy,
Cricket chirps crown the silence,
A single star finding it's way through the murk.
One second later it's gone.
Maybe it will reemerge,
From the dark clouds that encircle the mountain tops,
Maybe I'm that star,
Once twinkling amongst the rest,
Now shadowed by emotion,
My judgment clouded.
Maybe I can reemerge.
If I only try.

Fog

Fog crowns the green mountain tops,
Slivering over the tips of emerald trees,
Clinging to the sides of the dome.
Grey clouds shield the turquoise as light breaks free.
Raindrops flutter from vegetation,
Finally, as if coming from the heavens,
The land is swallowed by light,
The sun has made it through.
